BRITISH CAPTURE 3 IRAN CITIES

Map Of Iran Invasion

The map at top shows how the British and Russians are invading Iran from four points. Dispatches today said the British had captured three key points in Iran, including Bandar-Shapur, terminus of the railroad to Teheran, modern capital of the country. Russian sources reported speedy advances toward Tabriz. At bottom is General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander in India who is directing the allied drives.

Senate Stiffens On Income Exemptions

BUCKS PLAN TO ESTABLISH LOWER BASES

Republicans Hit Proposal Approved By Finance Committee.

WOULD HIKE TAX YIELD

GOP Claims Reductions Would Affect Taxpayers In Lower Brackets.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Senate opposition materialized quickly today to the finance committee's proposal for stiffening the new defense tax bill by lowering personal income exemptions and thus requiring an additional 7,000,000 persons to file returns.

There was opposition, too, for a provision that would end the community property system of filing returns now permitted in eight states.

Under the finance committee's plan, the bill—which called for a record-breaking $3,236,700,000 as passed by the house—would have its yield boosted to an estimated $3,590,700,000.

Approximately $303,000,000 of this potential increase was accounted for when the committee voted yesterday to lower present income exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 and from $800 to $750 for single persons.

An additional $51,000,000 revenue would be derived by eliminating the community property returns.

In the past, husbands and wives, in the eight community property states have been able to divide their income and make separate returns. Thus, a man with a $10,000 salary could file a return on $5,000 and his wife could file on $5,000. In many cases the system brought the aggregate of the separate taxes below what the total would have been under a single person return.

As for the proposed cuts in exemptions, a highly-placed Republican leader said a substantial group in his party would vote

Mansfield Police Find 2-Year-Old 'Runaway'

Although she's supposed to be lost, Darlene Charlene "Snookie" Huber, 21-months-old, 125 North Main street, doesn't appear so in the above picture. She spent two hours at the Mansfield police station this morning while police sought her parents and tried to find out where she lived. "Snookie" was found by police at Fifth and Main streets after she wandered away from home while breakfast was being prepared.

Above, she sits on the desk of Helen McIntyre, police record clerk, while Mrs. McIntyre tries to entertain her until a domestic in the Huber home called for her.

Lost Youngster Toddles Into Arms of Officers

'Snookie' Has a Big Time at Police Headquarters But Frantic Call From Home Soon Ends Her Fun.

Routine at Mansfield police headquarters was upset for a short while this morning by an unexpected visitor. Little Darlene Charlene Huber, only 21 months old, and who calls herself "Snookie," gave the place an unscheduled inspection.

"Snookie" was found by Capt. Thomas Bell and Lieut. Bruce Friday as they piloted their police cruiser along North Main street. Right at the intersection of Fifth and Main, she stood, looking for a chance to cross the street.

"Snookie" was lost but didn't seem to be perturbed about the situation. After questioning several persons in the neighborhood in an unsuccessful attempt to find her home, Bell and Friday brought her to headquarters.

Helen McIntyre, police record clerk, took charge of the child. She visited all departments in the municipal building, proudly displaying her nice "red shoes."

Two hours later when her absence was discovered at home, police received a frantic call from a young girl taking care of "Snookie" and another sister. "Snookie" had slipped out while breakfast was being prepared.

Mrs. Peter Huber, 125 North Main street, "Snookie's" mother, is in General hospital. She became the mother of another daughter yesterday. Huber is employed at Westinghouse.

Police gave their all to entertain their little visitor but her only answer was the dimpling of a left cheek.

Although she was safely returned to her home, police are afraid that she'll be back again tomorrow morning. She enjoyed her visit so thoroughly, they fear she'll go out and get lost all over again.

See Cushion Ready If Job Slump Comes

Survey Discloses Plants Here Add 1,500 to Payrolls In Year.

Even though governmental orders calling for a curtailment of production by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company might be invoked within the next few weeks, a survey today revealed that Mansfield industries have built up an unemployment "cushion" during the past year by adding approximately 1,500 men to their payrolls.

Such companies as the Ohio Brass, Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company, Tappan Stove, Mansfield Tire and Rubber and Humphryes Manufacturing company show employment gains up to 20 per cent above 1940's average.

Others show increases which vary from 5 to 50 per cent. Many plants have secured defense orders but all, regardless, have added to their payrolls.

No official order has been issued for a reduction in production of electrical appliance equipment, in order to conserve steel for armament industries, such as would affect Westinghouse, but defense officials in Washington said last week that such an order probably would be forthcoming.

Meanwhile, Westinghouse officials have been exerting efforts to learn just what materials they can expect to get and in what quantities, and are also attempting to land defense contracts.

Westinghouse employes are now on vacation, but company officials have emphasized that no lay-off orders have been issued, and that all employes have been instructed to return to work next week.

Although curtailment of operations at the Westinghouse would work individual hardships, the shock to the local economic system will be lessened by the fact that employment has increased steadily in other plants.

Several of these companies have already obtained defense orders and are anticipating more. The Ohio Brass, Mansfield Tire

STOCKHOLM — (INS) — The Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet today reported a Helsinki rumor that swiftly-advancing Finnish troops on the Karelian Isthmus have recaptured the vital city of Viborg (Viipuri), ceded to Soviet Russia after the Russo-Finnish war last year. LONDON — Sun-scourged Indian and British troops controlled three vital strategic points in Iran today after brief skirmishes — Bandar Shapur, Qasr-I-Shirin and Abadan, occupying at the latter one of the world's three largest oil refineries.

Air-borne troops, flying fighters such as Germany used in her conquest of Crete, took part in the British thrusts. Coordinated with Russian drives from the north, they swiftly throttled communications of the defenders.

British sources said the lightning movements of these air-borne troops were believed to have saved the large foreign colonies of Iran, including numerous Americans and British, from possible harm and to have

SLOSH IN MUD

Mansfield's Guardsmen Get Tough Taste of Army Life.

Mud, mud and more mud greeted Mansfield's Company F and other Ohio State guard units today as they launched the second day of their week's training program at Camp Perry.

The Mansfield guardsmen were initiated into the rigors of army camp life by a hard rain and wind storm which gave them a muddy session on the camp's rifle range.

Yesterday, the guardsmen opened their training in the face of a 30 to 45-mile an hour wind. While other Second and Third Regiment units went through their training, the First Battalion of the Second Regiment, comprised of companies from south-central Ohio stood a formal retreat.

Four more days of stiff training with rifle and bayonet as well as instruction for quelling riots will be gone through by the guardsmen before returning home from the tent city next Sunday.

Inquiry Ordered Into Gas Ration, Priority Systems

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The senate commerce committee today unanimously approved a resolution for a special senate committee investigation of the shortage of gasoline and fuel oil along the Atlantic seaboard.

The committee also approved a resolution for a separate investigation of the administration of the defense priority system.

The senate committee action came shortly after Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced that the government will take action "within 48 hours" to stabilize retail gasoline prices in eastern states.

Henderson advised President Thomas P. Henry of the American Automobile association that a price stabilization program was necessary because some dealers "are wilfully profiteering at the expense of motorists."

"I believe dealers making such advances are either misled by un-

5,500 Cast Ballots for Exclusive Collective Bargaining Rights.

DETROIT — (UP) — Bus drivers and street car operators of the municipally-owned transit system voted today on whether they want an AFL union or a CIO union to be their exclusive collective bargaining representative.

Approximately 5,500 employes cast ballots for either the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Employes (AFL) or the State, County and Municipal Workers of America (CIO). The one which gets a majority will be named executive agent for all the system's workers. The polls close Wednesday and the count should be made within a few hours.

Storm Misses City, Strikes Hard In Northern Ohio Area

An electrical storm that swept over northern Ohio last night causing property damage of thousands of dollars missed Mansfield entirely but gave this area a brilliant electrical display that lasted more than an hour.

The storm with wind and hail, struck swiftly in scattered parts of the country yesterday and caused $1,000,000 in damages along the eastern seaboard where homes were smashed and communication lines broken.

For five minutes hail fell in Cleveland while rain poured down elsewhere. Lightning struck twice at the Cleveland Railroad Company Service building, causing an estimated $550 damage. A 60-foot chimney at the Harrison elementary school in Lakewood was hit by lightning and falling bricks from the chimney smashed a 10-foot hole in a passageway. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

At Huron a squall blew 14-year old John Roethlein, six miles out on Lake Erie in a 12-foot canoe. The youth was baling his half-swamped canoe with his hands when he was rescued by coast guardsmen two hours after he was swept away from shore.

Nazis Withdraw Privileges of Mexican Consuls.

BERLIN — (AP) — The German government has informed Mexico that Germany is obliged to withdraw the privileges of Mexican consuls in Germany, it was announced today.

(On Aug. 22 Mexico ordered the closing of 15 German consulates by Sept. 1. This step was taken in reprisal for Germany's action in closing Mexican consular offices in Paris and six other German-controlled cities. These moves followed straining of German-Mexican relations after Germany had requested strongly that Mexico protest against the United States trade blacklist of pro-Axis firms.)

Yesterday Germany ordered the closing of Haiti's consulates in the Reich "for political reasons," and it was announced that German consulates in Haiti had been closed.

UNION ASKING O. P. S. ELECTION

Electrical Workers Seeking Vote In Mansfield, Two Other Plants.

Attempts to settle a strike threat at the Warren plant of the Ohio Public Service company had hit a snag today as the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL) demanded an election to determine bargaining rights at the Mansfield, Lorain, and Alliance plants of the company, Associated Press dispatches from Washington said.

J. A. Herbert, manager of the Mansfield division of the O. P. S. was reported in Cleveland today, and could not be reached for a statement. It was learned from other sources, however, that high company officials were meeting there to consider the situation.

Other OPS officials in Mansfield said they knew nothing of a request for an election. David H. Creps, business agent for the Mansfield local of the international would not comment on the Washington request.

The dispute had its beginning when the Utilities Workers Organizing committee (CIO) at Warren threatened to strike for higher wages. It had postponed the strike pending the outcome of a conference of union and company officials with John R. Steelman, director of the federal conciliation service.

In the midst of negotiations, however, the AFL leaders submitted their demands, forcing an end of the conference, since the conciliation service lacks authority to order an election.

22 More Youths From County In New Draft Call

Richland county today was asked to send 22 more youths to army camps on or shortly after Sept. 17 in the state's 26th draft call.

The contingent will be the first to leave Mansfield since Aug. 12. All calls preceding this one have been filled by the county's three selective service boards.

The 26th call will take eight men each from Boards 1 and 3 and six from the Board 2 district.

State draft headquarters said the 26th call provides for the induction of 1,649 white men, while the 27th, due about the same time, is for 183 colored selectees.

State selective service officials said the September quotas will be light. They may include some of the 21-year-old youths who registered July 1 and who are now being classified by the county draft boards, it was said.

Beaverbrook Admits He Would Like To See U. S. Enter War

(By United Press)

LONDON — Lord Beaverbrook, minister of supply, said today that "I would like to see the United States in the war" but added that "that is a question which the United States people must decide for themselves."

Beaverbrook returned from Washington where he conferred on supplies for Britain after sitting in on the Roosevelt-Churchill conference at sea.

"I am not going to be hypocritical," he said at a press conference. "I am one of those who would like to see the United States taking a higher part in the war."

Beaverbrook said he was satisfied with United States production. A steady flow of supplies was going to Britain, he said, and the United States was doing its utmost to keep supplies flowing.

The rate of production in America was satisfactory, he said, adding:

"But Britain can use everything she can get from the United States. We will never be satisfied with the amount of material because we need every possible thing we can get."

THREE IRANIAN KEY POINTS IN HANDS OF ALLIES

British Take Rail Terminus, Huge Oil Refinery In Fast-Moving Drives.

prevented sabotage of vital oil properties.

A communique reported that four merchant German ships, two of them beached and two damaged, and three slightly damaged Italian vessels were seized at Bandar Shapur. The crews of these tankers and freighters apparently were caught by surprise.

Under naval and air protection, the advancing Tommies now hold Bandar Shapur, southern terminus of the trans-Iranian railroad which leads directly to Teheran, the modern capital on the mountain slopes 70 miles south of the Caspian sea.

Indian troops who dashed across the Tigris river occupied Abadan and its island oil refinery, thus gaining possession of the southern end of the pipeline from the rich oil field at Masjid-I-Sulaiman.

Other British and Indian units, including tank and armored car detachments, crossed the Iraq frontier at Khanaqin, secured the oil installation at Naft-I-Shah and took the town of Qasr-I-Shirin.

General Sir Archibald P. Wavell's desert fighters now hold the western and southern terminals of Iran's only two modern highways.

A threat of invasion of India seemed to British observers to be removed by the Russian-British action against Iran. Since Afghanistan forms the longest barrier between India and Iran it was assumed that British operations would all be primarily directed from Iraq. Arid Baluchistan only has common frontiers with India and Iran.

"Some fighting at Abadan" was authoritatively acknowledged.

Generally, however, resistance by Iranian forces on the second day of the simultaneous British-Russian drives into modern Persia was very slight, an authoritative source declared.

Quick capitulation of Iran and establishment of an all-weather route for transport of war supplies to Russia were forecast by British observers.

A neutral military source declared that unless Iran's little army of 190,000 men was to upset all expectations, the Allies probably would meet only "token resistance."

The Russians announced that their Cossacks, sweeping down from the Caucasus, already were half-way to Tabriz, Iran's second-largest city, which is situated approximately 60 miles south of the Soviet frontier. Russian forces were reported also to have penetrated 25 miles toward Ardebil, on the west shore of the Caspian.

Reports Recapture of German Held City

(By United Press)

MOSCOW—Red army forces, in a savage counter-offensive on the central front, were reported today to have stormed and recaptured street-by-street a large ancient city in white Russia that had been in German hands five days.

(The dispatch did not make clear what city the Russians reoccupied. Russian forces, under Gen. I. A. Konev, however, have been engaged in a large-scale counter-offensive in the Gomel area and it was believed Gomel, recently taken by the Germans, might have been recaptured.)

Komsomolskaya Pravda, organ of the union of communist party, said that Russian tanks, infantry, cavalry and planes cooperated in recapturing the city.

Nazis Claim New Gains on Red Front

MOSCOW — (AP) — Smashing through another link in the chain of Leningrad's outer defenses, the Germans have captured fortified Novgorod and driven their battle-lines within 35 miles of the main Moscow-Leningrad railway.

An early-morning communique declared today that Red army defense forces withdrew from the manufacturing city 100 miles southeast of Leningrad after days of stubborn resistance.

A later war bulletin added that fierce fighting continued overnight along the entire front.

Soviet press dispatches said Leningrad's hastily-drilled people's army had gone into action alongside the regular Red troops —checking the Finnish thrust toward Leningrad from the north and the German drive past Kingisepp from the west.

Form Opposition To Petain Regime

VICHY, France — (AP) — More than 100 members of parliament have met in rump sessions here and formed themselves into an opposition to the regime of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, it was disclosed today.

Disclosure of this new organized opposition to the Vichy regime coincided with revelation that 12 passengers were injured in a new railway accident in occupied France suspected to have resulted from sabotage. An autorail and a freight train collided at the Carneville station south of Cherbourg.

Emergency courts, empowered to impose summary death sentences on Communists, anarchists and saboteurs, went into action against terrorists in the Paris area and it was disclosed that Petain would make an important speech Sunday in the Vichy stadium.

Observers said the parliamentary opposition was the most formidable and most important of the opposition which Petain himself admitted in his Aug. 12 speech to the nation.

BUCKS PLAN TO CUT TAX BASE

Senate Hits Proposal To Lower Income Tax Exemptions.

against them and Senator Clark (D., Idaho) said they failed to solve the fiscal problem.

Discussing this part of the committee's plan, Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the finance committee said that while 7,000,000 additional persons would have to file returns under the lowered exemptions, the majority would not be taxed. Only $59,000,000, he added, would come from persons already filing income tax returns.

The reduction in exemptions would give a major jolt to taxpayers in the lower present brackets.

For example, a single man with a $1,000 net income would pay $21 under the reduced exemptions compared with $15.40 under the house-approved bill and $4.40 under present law. The percentage increase would be smaller for a single man with a $50,000 net, who would pay $20,881.50, $20,715.20 and $14,709.20 under the respective levies.

A married man with no dependent and a $2,000 net income would pay $42 under the senate committee plan but nothing under the house-approved bill or present law. A married man with two dependents and a $3,000 net would pay $58, $11 and nothing under the plans in question.

Henderson said that the dealers apparently do not take into consideration reduced expenses due to the closing of stations from 7 p. m. to 7 a. m.

Meantime, three non-interventionist senators challenged the administration to prove that the shortage of gasoline on the east coast is real and not "just an attempt to bolster the war spirit."

Two cruisers, six destroyers and several merchant vessels were on the ways at the time. One cruiser, the U. S. S. Atlanta, was to have been launched August 9.

President L. H. The strike was called by the union in a dispute in which it sought to have included in a new working contract a clause providing that union members must maintain good union standing as a condition of employment.

damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars and damages to buildings and fences were estimated at $15,000.

At least a dozen barns were damaged in the Marion area and windows were blown from houses on numerous farms. Charles Lynn, a farmer, suffered scalp lacerations when a door blown from his garage struck him. One of his cows was killed by a falling timber.

Two persons were dead, over 100 injured and scores were left homeless today in the wake of the gale which lashed the eastern seaboard between Maryland and Maine.

Hardest hit was New Jersey where 75 homes were smashed, trees uprooted and communication lines snapped. George Hemple, 34, was killed, and 80 persons sustained minor injuries in Swedesboro, N. J., where the strong winds bowled over an 80-foot smokestack.

David Pinder, 24, of Jersey City, was electrocuted when he attempted to repair an electric crane at Jersey City shortly after the storm spent its fury.

About 40 persons were injured in the Woodbridge area, five of them being hospitalized. Fifty-one homes were wrecked or damaged.

Kansas City was struck with hurricane force by a terrific windstorm that inflicted extensive property damage and paralyzed traffic for nearly an hour.

Three huge radio towers were blown over, store fronts smashed, trees uprooted and cornices pitched into normally busy downtown streets.

The 544-foot broadcasting tower of radio station KMBC in suburban Johnson county, Kansas, crashed onto the home of Frank Angus. Mrs. Angus, her son, Donald, 10, and her daughter, Dorothy, 13, fled to the basement at the start of the storm and escaped injury.

No storms were in sight for Ohio tonight or Wednesday, according to the weather forecast, which predicted cooler weather with showers in the south portion tonight. Much cooler weather and occasional showers in the south portion were forecast for Wednesday.

VETO TO STAND

Will Not Attempt To Override FDR on Freezing Measure.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House members predicted today that no attempt would be made to override President Roosevelt's sharply-worded veto of legislation to freeze government loan stocks of wheat and cotton and to relax penalties for producing above-quota wheat.

They based their predictions on the fact that the bill passed the house by a close vote of 176 to 162 and, barring wholesale reversals, the members could not be expected to roll up the two-third majority required to override presidential vetoes.

The president's message called the bill "contrary to sound governmental policy and the long-time best interests of both farmers and consumers."

and several others are already working on defense orders.

Other companies like the Richland Shale Brick are benefited indirectly.. The company has been awarded contracts for bricks to be used for defense housing and has jumped employment more than a third.

Manufacturers like the Mansfield Brass, Taylor Metal, Mansfield Plating, Gorman Dupp, Globe Steel and the Hoff Manufacturing companies, have increased their staffs greatly under the spur of defense work. Most of the companies have increased their payrolls at least 20 per cent this year.

Several of the manufacturers contacted in the survey said that there had been a large influx of out-of-town workers in the past few weeks looking for work. The plant heads said, however, that only local persons would be hired, hereafter.

One double-parked truck requires more policing than a thousand cars using streets for their intended purpose.

Who says a dictator places little value on human lives—look how carefully Hitler and Mussolini guard their own.

It is being pointed out that back in the old days of "horse sense" you never heard of a collision of two horses on the road.

Strikes That Impede Defense

RESUMPTION of work at the Kearny, N. J., shipbuilding plant, after a three-weeks' shutdown by a strike, was brought about by government intervention, in the form of a presidential order—with the United States navy in charge.

This drastic action was taken only after various mediation steps had failed and when the shipbuilding company refused to agree to collect union dues and discharge any employe who became delinquent in payment of dues, this being known as the "maintenance of membership" clause in an otherwise acceptable agreement.

This strike, which involved approximately 18,000 workers and almost a half billion dollars in defense contracts for ships "essential to the defense of the United States," had been in progress since August 7, and up to the end of last week the parties concerned had given no indication of reaching agreement on the vital issue of whether the company should be made responsible for collection of union membership dues.

Action in the Kearny strike is not unlike that at the Englewood, Calif., aviation plant, which was re-opened by the army in June, after which practically all demands of the strikers were granted.

Strikes in large or small industries engaged in defense work constitute probably the most serious menace to the national preparedness program, and are also tending to disturb morale of young men in training camps.

National unity is not likely to be accomplished while self-interest is permitted to play such a large part in determining the speed with which defense production may proceed.

Home Affairs Need Attention

WAR and defense are, of course, subjects of paramount importance, for they touch every phase of national, community and individual life. They are in everyone's thoughts and no conversation is free from them.

But every city and town also has matters of local importance. The conduct of schools, the well-balanced growth of public libraries, the establishment of parks, the building of roads, the disposal of garbage—all these and other local affairs are not made less important by the war but more so.

When a local election is coming on, interest in Roosevelt and Churchill does not excuse lack of attention to local candidates. The home fires must be kept burning, community housekeeping must go on and be well done. Life begins at home. Home interests must be taken care of. Democracy cannot succeed if we are unwilling to work at its normal processes.

With the home and neighborhood duties done, then let the interest spread as far as it can. The whole world is involved in this struggle to save our homes. But let us keep enough interest in local affairs to make sure the homes are worth saving.

Both Sides 'Win'--Public Loses

STREET CAR and bus transportation service has been resumed in Detroit after a five-day strike during which several hundred thousand Detroiters had to find other ways to get to and from work.

It was a "jurisdictional" strike brought on by a dispute between the A. F. of L. and the CIO as to which should be in control of the city-owned transportation system, with closed shop privileges, a check-off of dues and exclusive use of bulletin boards. Both sides claim to have "won."

Mayor Jeffries questioned the legality of a "closed shop" and exclusive bargaining rights for civil service employes, but seems to have withdrawn objection in order to restore transportation service and prevent longer hardship to patrons.

This is a point, however, which appears to merit court determination as quickly as possible, not only in its application to the Detroit situation, but to decide, in general, as to minority rights to hamper and discommode a majority of the people.

Bicycles for Health and Economy

NOTHING in the realm of transportation is more striking than the survival of bicycles. It was expected that the rise of the four-wheeled motor car would drive them out of existence, except for children. But they have survived and increased, even in our automobilious land. There are said to be more bikes now than ever before, in proportion to population.

This situation is expected in areas of low income and expensive fuel, but today the vogue for bicycles seems to be rapidly increasing almost regardless of locality.

John B. Kelly of Philadelphia, recently appointed as U. S. director of physical training, is urging the wider use of bicycles not only for healthful sport but for business and social purposes, to save gasoline. He wants to set aside in his own city certain streets for the exclusive use of cyclists.

This may be done. And if done generally, it will make American cities look surprisingly like European cities. The time may come when business men and factory employes will ride their bikes to work as they did a generation ago.

College Boys and Their Bills

THE controller's assistant at the University of Southern California handles more than $250,000 a year in tuition on a credit basis. He ought to know something about whether college boys pay their bills or not. He says they do. Moreover, their record for prompt payment is remarkable.

It is not only the boys who have to pay their tuition slowly and in small amounts who are good credit risks, either. The boys who drive good cars and patronize good tailors pay their bills, too. It is the style to budget the income carefully for the college expenses of board and tuition, along with those for books, clothes and fun.

It is fine to learn that young America takes its obligations seriously and plans to keep its life on an even keel with work and play in fair proportions.

'Vegetable Car' Interests Knudsen

—By CARTER FIELD

HENRY FORD has to hire experts to develop some of his ideas but they're HIS ideas originally.

Making automobiles out of vegetables is one of 'em.

Emergency Production Manager William S. Knudsen was intensely interested when he heard of it. He was interested, for one thing, as a veteran automobile manufacturer. He was more immediately interested, however, in his official productive capacity. Think what a saving vegetable automobiles will mean, in various metals, much needed for military, naval and aviatorial purposes!

Henry Ford

For that matter, why can't vegetables be utilized as raw material in the construction of planes and a good many kinds of army and navy supplies? Henry hasn't gotten that far yet, though.

Besides Production Boss Knudsen, Agriculture Secretary Claude R. Wickard and Vice President Henry A. Wallace, as agriculture's ex-secretary, got a big kick out of the Detroit flivver wizard's new vegetable concept. Hank Ford himself has thought of his scheme from that angle. He predicts that we won't have any slump following our emergency boom, because farmers will be so prosperous by reason of the enormously increased automotive demand for their crops (for farmers are the boys who raise vegetables) that everybody'll feel the effect of the ruralites' well-being. It'll radiate in all directions, in Ford's opinion.

Henry, the papers report, already has one of his vegetable jallopies on exhibition. Bill Knudsen, Secretary Wickard, Vice President Wallace and probably many others studied descriptions of it minutely.

What's In It.

It isn't absolutely all nonmetallic. Its frame, motor and wheels have metal in 'em, but otherwise it consists of corn, cotton, wheat and soybeans. These are skuwashed up into what's referred to as plastic. That is, it's a gooey sort of stuff that can be molded. It's pressed out flat, in panels, dried and then mounted onto the fram and around the steering frame and motor.

Henry, as previously remarked, evolved the notion initially. Robert Allen Boyer, his chief research worker, cooked up the chemistry of it.

The plastic will stand harder bumps than steel, Boyer alleges.

It's suggested that typewriters might, largely, be made out of it. They're mentioned as machines that there may be a shortage of, if we continue to be so hungry for metal as we are now, in connection with our defensive and lease-lending activities.

I'd imagine that a vegetable typewriter would bounce around a good deal when its keys are tapped vigorously. Still, there's a way of counteracting that difficulty.

Years ago when I was starting on a news-gathering trip to China, I wanted a machine I could conveniently carry with me, and present-day portables weren't then available. However, I happened to run across a little affair known as a Blickinsderfer. I don't believe it's any longer manufactured. It could be be proved, by all the laws of mechanics, that it wouldn't work, but it did somehow. And it had an aluminum frame. You could pick it up on two fingers. So I took one. The trouble with it was that it would jump a foot high the minute you hit the keyboard. But I fastened it down to a desk with staples, and got away with it.

Of course, aluminum is the scarcest thing in creation at present, but a vegetable frame might be alright.

Metal spittoons are being eliminated. So are metal wastebaskets. So are metal garbage cans. Metal tableware is becoming taboo.

How about vegetable substitutes?

Listen World!

Shift Your Focus!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

WAS it a K or an R? An H or an N? I peered . . . blinked . . . couldn't for the life of me tell. The chart wavered before me, a clutter of meaningless blurs and blots. The little Viennese doctor snorted indignantly. It was only a year since he'd given me stronger glasses. And now!

"Did I not tell you?" he snapped. "But no—what good does it do to tell you? Still you sit there, I suppose, working with the nose on top of the typewriter or drawing board and the wall so close ahead you could touch it almost. Is it not so, yes? But how often do you lift the face to take a far look . . . change your focus? No! You cannot be bothered. You speed-crazy Americans are always too much in a hurry. Then, when you are but nearly blind, you go to some doctor and say, 'Fix me over!' It is a crime, I tell you. A CRIME!"

He stopped, breathless from exasperation, bristling to hide a genuine sympathy. (There had been shabby diggings in Vienna too, perhaps!) I grinned ruefully, knowing how right he was. More right than he guessed. Another proof of the High Cost of Poverty. But many a time, in the 20 years since, I've thought of those words, realizing how well they fit most of us . . . how desperately we need to lift our heads and hearts from the narrow niche in which we live and CHANGE OUR FOCUS.

Got a baby picture of yourself stored away somewhere? That one at three or five, in your Buster Brown suit or your Sister Winnie's new plaid sash? No need, then, to tell you to lift your face. It was up and eager as a new-hatched chick. Every trail in the world was calling, every peak was gleaming. Each hour held fresh marvel and adventure. You were ready for them all.

And then . . . how and just when did it happen? You'll never know, but somewhere between your First Party and your First Job, life began to narrow down. Perhaps you were cooped, literally, in some basement or attic space where there could be no "far look." Or it may have been fear, grief or illness which held you too close to stove or work bench, typewriter, sewing machine or drawing board.

Whatever the cause, the walls grew closer with each weary breath. No longer did you hear the calling trails . . . no longer did you "change the focus" from your personal problems to the larger vistas of human need and endeavor. Once, you'd had hobbies . . . stamp collecting . . . basket weaving . . . making radio sets, bird houses, paper flowers. Then, with high school, hobbies gave way to Causes. You were going to be a Missionary or a Great Politician. An Atheist or a Socialist—were they kinda alike? You read Omar Khayyam, Ingersoll, Father Damien's life, Camille . . . two chapters from a book about Social Service.

Far looks! Changed viewpoints! Shining glimpses of a wider reach of life that lifted you out and away from the cramped personal scheme of things. They did great things for you, those glimpses, in your young, growing years. They filled you with hungers and ambitions which were like a second birth. They fortified you against the slow, secret poisoning of poverty and injustice. What a pity that you lost them!

But you haven't lost them, not really. You have only to lift your head, change your slant, and they will be yours again . . . IF YOU WILL. Life's as big as your viewpoint . . . as far as your own focus. You can narrow it down to the size of a hangnail . . . you can broaden it until it encircles the stars.

READ A BOOK . . . TURN A DIAL . . . RAISE YOUR HEAD . . . FREE YOUR HEART . . . AND THE TRAILS WILL BE CALLING AGAIN!

Bingo Decision.

Unable to persuade the Cuyahoga Falls city administration to prohibit bingo games in Front street barooms, the suburb's Church Laymen's council appealed to state liquor enforcement officers. With the laymen's group furnishing the push, a test case was carried to the state liquor board and the board has just handed down its decision.

Ruling that bingo is a gambling game, the board suspended the accused promoter's liquor permit for 30 days. Other neighboring taprooms undoubtedly will take the hint, and the Falls' main stem will be a quieter, more decorous street henceforth.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Promise Heavy Tanks to Britain, Ship Shortage Is Big Problem

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Several days ago the Merry-Go-Round revealed that a chief objective of Lord Beaverbrook's visit was to get more tanks—tanks for Iran; tanks for Egypt, tanks eventually for an invasion of the continent. Beaverbrook particularly wanted the new powerful 32 tonners that soon will roll off the Chrysler assembly line at the rate of 450 a month.

It can now be revealed that the British supply minister will not go home empty handed. He will take back with him very cheering assurances regarding the division of these tanks between the U. S. and British armed forces. But that isn't the end of his tank problem.

Allotting tanks to the British in this country is one thing, but delivering them across the Atlantic is another.

In fact the problem of transporting large numbers of 32-ton tanks is the toughest shipping problem maritime experts have faced since the magnetic mine, which ravaged shipping until the de-magnetizing devices were evolved.

In a nutshell here is the problem: For every shipload of light 12-ton tanks sent to England or Africa, the same ship plus nearly ¾ of another ship would be required to transport the same number of 32-ton tanks. In other words they are bigger. Translated into specific figures—that 26-ship convoy which landed 560 light tanks at Alexandria three months ago would have had to consist of 44 vessels to carry the same number of medium tanks.

With shipping scarcer than hen's teeth, a difference of 18 ships is an extremely important factor. Also, the necessity of travelling in slow convoys further reduces the amount of shipping available. Some experts estimated this reduction as high as 50 per cent. In addition the British sometimes take an excessively long time to unload cargoes.

So the tank problem thus also becomes an acute shipping problem. One bright spot in the situation is the great reduction in ship losses in the last 60 days since the extension of the U. S. neutrality patrols. But the basic problem of securing more cargo bottoms still remains.

Note: Since January 1, U. S. shipyards have turned out a total of 56 cargo vessels.

Capital Chaff.

COLLEAGUES of Senator Pappy O'Daniel are chortling over his radio broadcast telling Texas that "President Roosevelt thought it best to hide out and take to the high seas before I arrived." Desperate efforts were made by E. B. Germany, state Democratic chairman and friend of O'Daniel, to have this cut out of the radio transcriptions before used over Texas stations. . . . The Washington diplomatic corps is goggle-eyed over Mrs. Warren Pierson's new book "The Good Neighbor Murder." Her husband is head of the Export-Import bank which loans millions to the Good Neighbors. . . . Army officers are singing the praises of 20th Century-Fox's Darryl Zanuck and many movie moguls for their big job in filming 100 reels of army training films. This was the first time training films have ever been taken, and Hollywood did them for forty per cent of what it would have cost Hollywood itself to do the job. In other words, the army only had to pay union labor and cost of film, Hollywood supplying the studios, production, overhead and everything else.

Auto Cut.

THAT fanfared OPM cut of 26½ per cent in auto production drew no cheers from war department chiefs. To them it was a big disappointment.

First of all the cut looks a lot bigger than it actually is. For one thing the OPM carefully did not reveal in its hoopla press releases was the fact that even with this curtailment auto production still will be 10 per cent greater than in 1938 and 1939.

In other words, notwithstanding the increase shortage of strategic raw materials, such as steel, rubber, alloys and other metals, auto production is to continue at levels higher than in the peaceful years of '38 and '39.

Another reason for the army gloom was that it wanted an immediate cut of at least 50 per cent.

For months war department heads pleaded and argued with OPM moguls for drastic curtailment, on the ground that the materials going into pleasure cars are desperately needed for planes, tanks, ships, guns and other vital armaments. But for months the OPM master-minds did absolutely nothing.

Finally, in July, scrappy OPACS Director Leon Henderson, who has seen eye-to-eye with the army on this issue from the start, took the bull by the horns and "ordered" a 50 per cent slash.

OPM's reaction was to hit the ceiling. It refused to accept the ruling. And while OPM battled behind the scenes with OPACS, autos continued to roll off assembly lines in record breaking numbers. However, Henderson's bare-knuckling finally took effect. The 26½ per cent cut is a little less than half of what the army and Henderson wanted, but it is 6½ per cent more than OPM's original figure.

John L. Lewis Defeat.

THE big inside story of the recent United Auto Workers convention in Buffalo is that John L. Lewis was soundly licked in a secret attempt to get this powerful union, second largest in the CIO, under his ambitious thumb.

Lewis sought this control, first, to strengthen his recapture of the CIO presidency from ailing Phil Murray; second, to foster his political ambitions as an anti-Roosevelt, isolationist champion.

Crux of the undercover fight at Buffalo was control of the Auto Workers' executive board, in which Lewis and his leftwing allies were defeated twice.

Lewis also was floored on the question of the CIO presidency. He couldn't afford to oppose a Murray endorsement openly, as he would be certain to be licked, which would be disastrous for Lewis. So Lewis henchmen tried desperately to avert any declaration on the question. But the anti-Lewisites outmaneuvered them and the convention went on record overwhelmingly for another term for Murray.

John L. also changed his secret plan to deliver a surprise address at the meeting. This had been quietly arranged by George Addes, UAW leftwing secretary-treasurer, but sensing the anti-Lewis sentiment at the very start, John L. did not show up. Instead Allan Haywood, CIO national organization director, went to Buffalo to try to do Lewis' axing for him.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—William Hazlitt Brennan may be right when he protests against an item that paints surefire success for his play, "The Wookey," which is due on Broadway Sept. 8. Brennan is a big, bluff, hearty Irishman who has done well by himself but he knows Broadway and human nature, and he doesn't like the idea of advance stories released by Hollywood studios that point to all the money behind the play and authoritatively call it a success even before it has been produced or before the critics have had an opportunity to think for themselves. One line especially irked him—the line that said, "Brennan should wind up with the better part of a million."

So Brennan batted out a note to his producer, Edgar Selwyn, saying, "I am not a rich Hollywood writer. I am an old desert rat squatting on a ghost ranch in Hidden Valley. I came to Hollywood with the script of this play written on the backs of foreclosed motgages, and fell fainting fom hunger at Kenneth McKenna's doorstep.

He went on from there to picture the shambles they should all be in if the critics became annoyed at the unwise buildup from publicity offices three thousand miles away from Broadway.

SELWYN, a sage, experienced old hand at the business, agrees. There certainly isn't going to be any mention of heavy folding money and surefire success—before the premiere—from the Selwyn office.

However, there doesn't seem to be any law against an opinion from this department. So without any reason save intuition I would like to predict that "The Wookey" will be the first real hit of the new season.

I've seen the manuscript. It's all in cockney. It's about a guy named Wookey who lives in a dump close to the Thames, and he refuses to be blasted out of it—by Hitler or by anybody else. He fights Hitler and Chamberlain at the same time, and he writes letters to Churchill when his temper prompts him.

The play opens at the outbreak of war, and Selwyn has brought over from England actual recordings of the bomber blitz—screaming bombs, crashing buildings, throbbing motors, sirens. . . . These are sounds that the recorders picked up during the all-out air blitz by Goering's raiders last September.

WOOKEY takes an old scow and rescues 600 men and a disabled torpedo boat from Dunkirk. . . . But the only reason he goes over there is to rescue his brother-in-law. . . . As a "reward" for this bit of unpremeditated heroism they take his boat away from him because he owes a $40 gas bill. . . . Later, they give him a medal, but he says to hell with that, he wants his boat back. . . .

This, in a sense, is "The Wookey." . . . As a title, Brennan dislikes it. He says it horrifies him. . . . He wanted to call it "They Fought at Arques," a title suggested by the quotation, "Hang thyself, brave Crillon. We fought at Arques, and you were not there."

But, they overruled him.

A Farmer's Diary

Hints of Autumn

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE WIND has blown for weeks already across the oats stubble, and crickets' "creek creek" is heard at close of every summer day. Katydids trill nightly from every tree and bush that autumn will be early. Already there are purple tints among the woodland leaves; grass on the hill is seared; swallows gather in long rows on telegraph wires.

"Where has the summer gone?" we ask ourselves. It seems only such a short time since we heard the first warble of welcome bluebirds, the pleasing song of meadowlarks, the robins chirping in the budded maple trees. It seems such a little while since we watched with strange delight the oriole weave its hanging nest and heard the sweet retreating call among the forming leaves. Then came, without warning, warm drenching showers that mellowed the new-plowed fields, made idle brooks into small brimming rivers and deepened the dark green mantle of the wheat. Rows of small corn looked like dimpled lines of green across the even, cultivated surface.

Our hopes were high for harvest. Moisture came in great abundance. Low water tables had come up several inches. Moist earth was never far below the surface. When I dug holes for planting trees, the shovel point was never dry. Yet, shortly, sun and wind had tried the soil, and only plants with deep roots remained green.

Not many days ago cattle browsed knee-deep in lush and fragrant pasture. Their udders at milking time were distended and bulging. New lambs and suckling pigs hid from their mothers in a tangling maze of grass. New lambs have attained adult size and pigs are heavy shoats. But food is not so plentiful. Cattle are not so sleek or comfortable. They stand together in groups beneath a shady tree in the languorous heat of noon and switch and stamp the flies.

Roadsides and school yards are being mowed. The village stores are full of "back to school" togs. Fairs are an epidemic in the land. The gum tree flaunts its first red leaves.

A few more weeks and frost will come. Quiet haze will blue the hills, the air will carry the first tang of winter. The years go by so fast! There is a sigh in the words—we all have uttered them—"Where has the summer gone?"

CUPID HAUNTS SAME OFFICE

MINERAL WELLS, Tex. —(U.P.)—Miss Dolores Groves, 18, approached her boss, E. D. Hightower, manager of the Retail Merchants' association, and told him she was resigning to get married.

Three days later his second secretary, Miss Doris Evans, 20, offered her resignation. She, too, planned to marry.

Since that time he has been swamped with applications from young women—presumably—seeking employment.

Hightower wasn't certain whether he had a credit association or a bureau for lonely hearts.

Perfume Always Held Special Niche In Life

Since the beginning of recorded history perfume has occupied a special niche in this life of ours As is the case today, the ancient races were quite lavish in its use.

In the days of the Pharoahs of Egypt, perfume not only was greatly appreciated, but much thought and care given the containers in which it was kept so their appearance might be well in keeping with their then (as now) precious contents.

While perfume has played a truly memorable role both in the ancient world and the modern, it's interesting and pertinent to note that the atomizer, in its turn, has played an all-important part in the history of perfume. The atomizer has traveled hand-in-hand with perfume almost from time immemorial.

History records that atomizers were used by the Romans to enhance the effect of perfume as many as 100 years before the time of Nero, and that the theaters of Rome were so piped as to permit the spraying of a fine mist of perfume on the audience, cooling and perfuming the atmosphere.

The ceilings of Nero's "Golden House" in Rome was piped in much the same way. It's recorded that at one of his feasts 100,000 crowns were spent for perfumed waters, alone.

Needless to say, today's perfume atomizer is a far cry from the perfume jars of ancient Egypt and the spraying systems of the Rome of Nero's time and before.

Yet the same care is exercised in the creation of the containers, while the same basic principle of atomization (much improved, of course) is employed.

While much thought and care are given the artistic design of the metal parts, it is in the containers that artistic talent is given its full latitude. There is, of course, a strong tendency toward the neo-classic and modernistic in container design.

The color scheme used was pink, blue and white with flowers in those shades centering the table. Tall lighted white tapers softly illuminated the scene.

Women Prefer Men's Clothing For a Change

By ORRY-KELLY

Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing for International News Service

HOLLYWOOD — We haven't talked about that "something borrowed from the men" for a long time, but that doesn't indicate that the borrowing hasn't been going on from day to day.

I was buying a tie in the men's shop across from the Studio the other noon and there was Priscilla Lane trying on boys' white sweat shirts. It seems that Priscilla wears them with her shorts at the beach or for slipping on after a game of tennis. She told me she likes an all-white outfit best with the shirt topping a pleated white sharkskin skirt. You may take this as the hottest tip on "fashions odd and unusual" of the week.

Then there is the present craze for yellow. Sometimes I think I'm seeing sun spots there's so much of this color everywhere. They're even combining it with black. Maureen O'Hara has an evening gown with scalloping, and a bouffant skirt in yellow. Brenda Marshall likes a yellow crepe pillbox and bag with a black crepe daytime dress. A yellow silk shirt tops black linen slacks, and so on.

Jewelry follows the airiness of summer by appearing in light weight costume versions. Such as the small plastic pansies Greer Garson wears in her ears, and the beautifully wrought silver "Aladdin's Lamp" with ruby flame that hugs Marguerite Chapman's suit lapels.

There's also a complete story in gingham which is a Hollywood choice 24 hours a day. It's liked in soft suits and dancing frocks, and Kathryn Grayson reports that she sleeps in a gingham nightgown. Gingham also for the luxuriant trim on a smart dress Virginia Field wears in "Singapore Woman." Her wide-brimmed sailor is edged with it and Virginia also wears a wide Gibson girl bow of the gingham under her hat.

Everyone is following Perc Westmore's scientific method for getting a perfect sun-tan. Perc has worked it all out even to the exact number of minutes one should lie in the sun. With so many even bronzes white dresses appear in every wardrobe. There is nothing more striking than white against a tanned skin.

Another bit of news from the Coast is the appearance of copper jewelry. Since a noted physician reported that wearing of copper keeps the system alkaline and purifies the blood stream, health is finding a glamorous ally in wide bracelets and clever earrings. Ida Lupino is wearing matching bracelets, one on each wrist, combining shiny strips of copper with narrow sections of California redwood.

HERE AND THERE

MANSFIELD'S younger set seems to spend a lot of their time at Cedar Point dancing to the music of some of the top ranking bands of the country. If you happened to have been there last week you could have seen Joan Davey, Polly Morrissey, Bill Locke, Vera Jo Robertson, Lee Walter and Patty Palmer.

* * *

Others who spent the evening there were Mariann Stander, Dick Sturges, Marjorie Calver, Daryle Heiser, Joan Locke, Jim LeMunyon, Ed Chatlain, Joe Atton, Bob Straub, Ray Bush, Anna Jane Lloyd, Howard Ripper, Elsie McConnell, Dave Shelley, Barbara Chatlain and Marjorie Mahon.

Man Falls In Love With Friend's Wife

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Some years ago Sir Arthur Wing Pinero, then England's leading playwright, wrote a play called "Mid-Channel." It had to do with those restless years that seem to come to the best of men between forty and fifty, when they grow tired of their wives, their homes, even their children, and do things hard to reconcile with clear-cut sanity.

All for love and the world well lost," as an older playwright then Pinero called a play, seems to be their motto. When they come out of this love furnace, or whatever you choose to call it, often minus jobs, the respect of their associates, considerably sadder and wiser, it's too late to jump on the boat which has pulled away from their particular dock, as told in a letter that came in the morning's mail:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"If anyone had told me I could have got into the mess in which I seem to be sinking, I wouldn't have believed it. Here am I, a woman of 34, with two children, a good husband, a home which should satisfy any woman of ambition. When I was young, in the early twenties, I had dreams of being a great opera singer. With marriage and child-bearing, these dreams settled in the more prosaic rut of being a choir singer.

"I am the leading soprana in a church. Naturally I met the pastor, a man ten years my senior, who not only is a wonderful preacher to his congregation, but who lectures on secular subjects before large audiences.

"We fell in love and we realized the folly of our infatuation. To marry him, I would have to sue for divorce for which I have no legitimate grounds, not even 'mental cruelty.' The pastor's wife has been the very heart and soul of the parish success. Still, we were mad about each other.

"This obsession blotted out every obligation to everyone connected with us—his wife, my husband, his children, my children, his duties as a pastor, and mine as a woman is a responsible position. Our infatuation was discovered. I was asked to leave the choir, under pain of having my lover dismissed from his pastorate. His wife grew desperately ill—but still we are in love.

"Wouldn't it be better to come out in the open and confess our love and have him divorce his ailing wife and me divorce my long-suffering husband, to have my lover resign his pastorate and take what happiness is left for us? I'm writing you this letter to get it all off my mind. No one could be more miserable than I.

"Desperate"

For me the great exponents of human difficulties and their solution, cruel as it often is, are the newspapers. You probably recall the divorce of a prominent man only a few years ago. He threw aside church, state and nationality for a love he imagined immortal. Now he has been sued for divorce, on the grounds of "mental cruelty," by the lady for whom he gave up one of the most brilliant careers that these United States has to offer. There are hundreds of such cases.

If you have no good memory and read the papers, you will recall them. I don't know why it is that the element of comedy has a way of sneaking into these world-shaking love affairs. People who throw aside the gifts of the gods for love are apt to seem funny to others.

No, I can't advise you to go off with the clergyman. It will be better for all of you if you stand pat. The domine may come to hate you in time as the woman who wrecked his career. And you may grow to hate the domine as man who separated you from your comfortable home and children. Time flies and, with it, passion.

Attempt to Fit Make-Up To Clothes

By MME QUI VIVE

In the cosmetic family the steady workers are creams, lotions, complexion packs, powders and hand beautifiers. Powder serves two purposes: it is decorative and it is a protective agent, warding off the ravages of atmospheric dust, strong sunlight and cutting winds. The sweet triflers are rouge, lipstick and eyeshadows. We can get along without them, but we don't. Nor should we have to.

There is a relationship between makeup and dress, or there should be. It seems silly to fling on the gaudy batik for a day at the beach or a tramp in the woods; a little is enough. The synthetic loveliness can be bolder when the gorgeous evening attire is worn. There is a bond between golden eyelids and rich brocades, shining, brightly rouged lips and rustling taffetas, factory blushes and exquisite laces. We are entitled to flaunt the contents of the makeup kit when the softly shaded lights are glowing, the orchestra is playing, the dance is on. One's face can be at its glowingest.

But in the daylight! Let's pussy foot then. Let's lay on only the lightest film of rouge, select a lipstick of natural coloring, not be tempted by the eye shadows. Old Mister Sun shows them up too plainly, makes the stronger tones look garish.

Eye shadows and the little tweed won't speak to each other, but eye shadows and the gorgeous evening robe walk hand and hand. They belong to the same beauty sororiety. When clad in practical clothes, wear a practical complexion, which is the one you were born with, plus a few discreet high lights. Display a fresh, clean, clear, healthy skin, powdered lightly to produce a velvety finish. Lips can be tinted faintly. That's the course that Miss Smarty follows.

A first class lipstick that knows its business imparts a luster to the lips, makes them appear moist. Just now you have your choice between the blue-reds and the orange-reds, the brilliant cardinals having taken a back seat. Be sure you apply it skillfully. Form an outline with the stick, which should be sharpened, then fill in, applying with an up and down stroke, blending with the finger.

We hear no more about the porcelain complexion. Powder is applied lightly, the surplus removed with a camel's hair brush designed for the purpose. Too much powder gives the face a mask-like smoothness that is not in accord with the natural effects that are the mode. This day's girl is dashing and romantic, but not exotic. She is as elegant and feminine as smart clothes and discreet cosmetic artifice can make her.

Now that rouge is being soft pedaled, the new powders carry more of a rose cast. They are at once rosy and golden, which combination gives the complexion life and radiance.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, Aug. 27.

A moderate degree of success and satisfaction should mark this day, although there are openings for advancement, favor and preferment knocking at the door. These may be attended by temptations to do the wrong thing, or make hazardous decisions. While the mind will be clever and the wits swift and keen, yet certain obscurities or confusions may pull in unprofitable directions, causing unfavorable results. A tendency to romantic ideas, sentimental fancies or social glamor may be the defeating factor.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is should be assured a year of good opportunity for success, advancement, promotion or tokens of preferment from superiors or those in power. An urge to grasp such advantage and to expand the field of action and ambition carefully developed may be encouraged, but the same may be imperiled by extravagance, over-enthusiasm, undue haste in forcing issues, or other unwise temptations, precipitating reversals or false moves. Sentimental, glamorous or romantic ideas may confuse and perplex, particularly where public or collective demands are involved.

A child born on this day should be versatile, resourceful, highly intellectual, attracting the support of its superiors and attaining success.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"You're sure he called Redfield 'Stepan'?" I asked Mary sharply, for I wanted to rivit that link between her story and that of Nancy Carew.

"Sure as I am sitting here talking to you," she retorted. "He spoke very distinctly, and you may be sure my ears were wide-mouthed ewers."

"What was Redfield's reaction?" I prodded, as she paused.

"If he hadn't been perfectly poised, he'd have jumped a foot," she returned. "As it was, you could have bought him for two cents. He shot one involuntary glance at me, gave his double a dirty look that would have burned most men up, but didn't even dent the double. How's that for alliteration?"

I moved impatiently, and she caught my disapprocal.

Wouldn't Be Put Off.

"Sorry," she said. "I'll get along." I guess Steve saw the other man meant business, and wasn't to be stirred from his tracks until he got what he was after, for he suddenly straighened himself, bowed elaborately to me and said:

" 'Won't you please sit down a minute? I must see about something. I'll be right back.'

"He made no attempt to introduce his double; simply went back with him to his table and satdown. I noticed that it was a table apart from the others, and that if the people at it kept their voices down, they couldn't be heard by anybody else.

"Since then I've been thinking it over, and I believe that table was fixed that way on purpose. I'll bet the whole place is a nest for their cussed revolutionists."

"No doubt it is," I told her, "and of course you couldn't hear what they said."

At the Point of Quarreling.

"No, nor read their lips, either," Mary said. "But I could see that they were as near a quarrel as Steve would permit himself to get into in a public place.

"I kept watch from behind my eyelashes, and I saw that the man was berating Stephen for something, and that Stephie wasn't taking it any too well. Then the double, who had been fiddling with his napkin all the time he was talking, pushed it a bit toward Steve, and I distinctly saw my valorous leading man take an envelope from beneath the napkin and slip it under the table.

"If I hadn't been watching him so closely, I'd never have caught it," she said, with a note of unconscious admiration in her voice. "They were pretty slick, those two! Then the double went away—he'd already paid his check—and Steve came back to our table.

" 'Would you mind waiting a bit longer?' he asked. 'I'd like another drink, and I want to look at some papers I have in my pocket. I meant to do it before, but I completely forgot them in talking to you.'

Doesn't Know Mary Suspects

"Oh boy, oh boy. Did I get a kick out of that?" Mary rhapsodized. "It showed he hadn't caught on to my watching-beneath-the-eyelashes trick at all. He was sure I had not seen the envelope being passed to him, and he counted on my credulity in believing it to contain ordinary harmless business or professional papers.

"I tried to make my voice careless, and I gave him a special smile as I answered him.

" 'You do say the nicest things in the nicest way, Steve,' I told him, spreading the jam on thick. 'And I don't mind waiting a bit.'

" 'What would you like?' he asked, and I told him pronto.

" 'Another cup of coffee, and another piece of that delicious thing-agummy we had for dessert,' I told him.

Mary Had a Reason.

"He opened his eyes a bit at that, for I never order very much when I'm out with him, partly because of my 'figger' and partly because I don't feel like having him pay out very much for me. You see, I'm virtually spying on him, and—you understand."

"Of course I do," I said, "and I also understand your unusual order. You wanted to pretend to be occupied while you watched him."

Essence of Learning Is Accuracy

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

Almost parallel with the mania for speed in the physical world is that of the typical modern public school room. In the average school, particularly the elementary school, it is required that answers be given or certain things accomplished, in a given time. It makes no difference about the accuracy of the answer, or precision, or skill, just so the response is rapid.

Emphasis on Quantity.

Quantity of output is paramount: how many problems tried, how many lines read, how many words spelled, right or wrong. Try enough sums, and a goodly number might be right; read enough lines, and some might be comprehended; repeat enough words, and a few of them might be spelled correctly. But there is small consideration for cultivating in the learner the attitude of accuracy first; for helping him to gain an ideal of perfect mastery, or engendering in him a passion for precision.

Penalized For Being Slow.

Should the pupil choose, despite the hurry atmosphere, to be right rather than rapid, he will be hounded for his slowness and penalized in his school marks. The average pupil in the elementary grades soon discovers that it doesn't pay to be painstaking when he studies or recites. On entering junior high school, he still finds that the hurry attitude prevails.

From the time the child enters kindergarten he is stimulated with dramatic snatches of headline information to appreciate, which presupposes skills and knowledge that can be mastered only by those several years beyond him. Third and fourth grade children are accordingly exposed to the "human interest" items from high school and college courses.

Pushed Ahead Too Fast.

Passing on through the grades, the pupil is increasingly exposed to all sorts of "knowledge" dressed up in gaudy clothes, sometimes burlesqued. But what he really gets is often very indefinite and confused; frequently it is wholly incorrect.

The prevailing theory and practice of education offers youth but little encouragement for acquiring habits of hard mental work; nor is there much time at school allotted for his training in habits of precision. Fortunately, the foregoing does not apply to all schools.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q. My daughter 9 years old barely passed in arithmetic. She has trouble with simple addition and subtraction. I find she still counts out most of the addition and subtraction combinations. I understand you advise that the 100 basic addition facts and the 100 basic subtraction facts be learned by heart and that you have copies of these facts available.

A. I have, and will send them without cost, to any one who will write me at 235 East 45th street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with three cents. Already several thousand parents have written me for these and received them.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

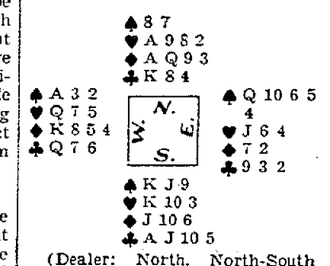
"The Authority on Authorities"

USING ALL INFORMATION

One trouble about shaded interrupting bids and shady doubles by non-vulnerable players, trying to keep strong vulnerable opponents from bidding the full strength of their hands, is that the enemy may go on to the best spot anyway, and in both the bidding and the play will be guided by the information that has been given. It may tell how to play every suit, showing just what finesses will work and which ones won't, and thereby may prove to be worth a trick or more to the opposition.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Dbl
2 ♦	2 ♠	2 NT	Pass
3 NT

West led the spade 3, East putting on the Q. South then took stock. Seeking a top score in the Skytop Club duplicate, in the Pocono mountains of Pennsylvania, for the benefit of the British American Ambulance corps, Mrs. Harry L. Derby saw a chance to make use of the information given by the bidding. East having shown the spade Q, she decided to play West for the missing ace, king and two queens, and East for the spade 10.

Right at the outset she had the courage of her conviction. Instead of holding up on the first trick, she came right in with the K, retaining the guarded J as a further stopper if West got in the lead. Playing West for the diamond K, she finessed the J, then the 10, then the Q. Next she led the spade 8 and finessed the 9 to the A of West, who returned the spade 2 to the J. The club J was sent through, the 10 covered by the Q and K, the diamond A cashed, the heart 8 led to the K, the club A and 5 taken in and the heart 3 led to the A to furnish the last trick, giving her an unbid small slam for a big top score.

At no other table did West make such a double, so nobody else made as many tricks. It was a bad mistake to try such antics against Mrs. Derby, one player who knows how to look, listen and remember.

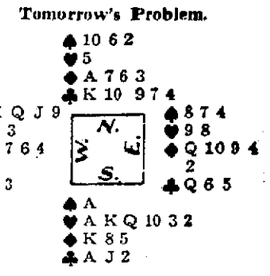
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

If West had made a spade overcall during the auction, how would you in the North play this hand for 6-Clubs against a lead of the spade 8?

Rice will cook up into almost three times its bulk. About half a cup of uncooked rice is enough for two generous portions.

Love Will Come Again + + +

CHAPTER XIV

"Who else would it be?" Gay smoothed back her hair. "He has been driving ever since he heard you were in trouble. But he's a little worried for fear you won't want to see him. You will be nice to him won't you Cherry?"

Tears squeezed through Cherry's closed eyes and she nodded without speaking.

"I'll tell him just as soon as he's through eating," Gay smiled, relieved. "He hasn't had a bite to eat all day. Poor darling."

Gay put a fresh bed jacket on Cherry and bathed her face and hands and combed her golden hair. Her face was chalk white against the pillow, and her eyes rimmed with dark circles. But she was very beautiful as Pat stood looking down at her a few minutes later.

"Cherry," he said softly, "it's—Pat, honey. How do you feel?"

Cherry opened her pansy eyes, and they filled with quick tears.

"Okay," she whispered.

Pat sat down beside her, taking her hand.

"Do you mind if I sit here a little while?" he asked shakily. "If you don't want me I'll go."

Cherry said with a little sob: "Don't go. Please don't."

Pat reached over and smoothed the hair back from her hot head and said gently:

"You bet I won't go, Sugar."

He felt a weak pressure on his hand as Cherry hooked her little fingers around his large brown ones, and his heart thumped in his breast as he realized what she was trying to tell him. She hadn't meant what she had said about his staying out of her life and minding his own business. She was glad he was there beside her, and she needed him.

After a long silence Cherry opened her eyes, and looked at Pat. "I can never hold my head up again. All the terrible things the papers are saying about me."

Pat smiled as naturally as he could and exclaimed:

"The papers! What difference do they make? Why tomorrow they'll have someone else on the spot and they'll forget all about what has happened to you. What do you care about the scandal sheets."

Tears flowed down Cherry's white cheeks.

"B—but the people back home They'll never forget it. I could never go back to Salem again. Never."

Pat leaned over and put his face to hers and said brokenly:

"You can go with me, sweetheart. And nobody will dare say anything about you. We'll go back and face it together, if you'll go with me. Will you Cherry? I love you so."

Cherry whispered heart brokenly:

"I can't Pat. I'd ruin your career. Nobody will ever have any respect for me at home again. I've been—such a fool. B—but I haven't really done anything bad, Pat. Not really."

"Of course you haven't," Pat put his lips to her cheek tenderly. "You've just been blowin' off a little steam. I've always understood."

Cherry choked childishly: "You're too good to me, Pat. You deserve somebody a lot nicer than I am. I—can't ruin your life. I won't!"

"Do you love me—just a little bit?" Pat held his breath for her answer.

Cherry turned her head and found his lips and when she had kissed him tenderly she whispered:

"I do love you—terribly."

But Cherry remained steadfast in her determination not to go back to Virginia and marry Pat Hastings, even after she was able to be up and around the house. She would not ruin his career. It was then that Curt De Witt, taking matters into his own hands, offered Pat a job as an attorney with Sherlock Steel.

That night, out of gratitude, and because she was so very fond of him, April told Curt she would be his wife.

Pat would not have accepted Curt De Witt's offer to go to work for Sherlock Steel if he had not felt it was the only way he could remain in New York to be near Cherry. His pride told him the steel head only gave him the opportunity for April's sake. Curt knew how worried April was about her younger sister.

Then too, Pat had hoped to follow in his father's footsteps in Virginia and perhaps go into politics when he was a little older and more experienced. But no sacrifice was too great when he could be with Cherry. She was still very nervous, and given to nightmares in which she saw the terrace suicide reenacted, but she was kind and gentle with Pat and everyone around her, and apparently wanted to see nothing of the outside world. She would never go back to Georgettes, she declared stoutly.

Lola came out to see her quite frequently, bringing messages from the old crowd, but never urging her to go back to modeling. Lola was fond of Pat and thought Cherry would be much better off married and settled down with him. Si Winters sent flowers every day with notes telling Cherry he hoped she would soon be well.

Lola told Cherry he had shut himself off from his friends almost completely since the attempted suicide of Patsy Lloyd and it was beginning to look as though they wouldn't enjoy any more of his fabulous parties. He hadn't been seen with Fifi Du Bois, or any of his other girl friends since that evening. Patsy had gone back to her home in Pennsylvania after leaving the hospital.

Just before Thanksgiving Curt brought his daughter Penny for Sunday dinner to the apartment in Douglastown and April met her for the first time. She was a lanky twelve-year-old with black pig tails and braces on her teeth. But she had a shy friendly smile that won friends instantly.

Curt had thought it best for April to meet and know Penny before they told the child she was to have a stepmother. She was such a sensitive little girl that he was not certain how she would take the idea of April and Kenny being taken into the family circle.

Kenny was delighted to have someone to entertain, and almost immediately after Penny had met April, Gay, Cherry, Pat and Hyacinthe he took her off to the nursery to show his toys.

Penny adored younger children and soon they were lost in play. When April and Curt looked in a little later Kenny was curled beside Penny in a big chair and she was reading "The Story of a Little Duck" to him.

"They seem to be hitting it off fine," Curt smiled, giving April a quick kiss as they walked down the hall. "They'll make a nice family, don't you think."

"Lovely!" April said. "Penny is such an appealing little darling. I do hope she will love me."

"How can she help it?" Curt gave April another quick kiss. "Of course she'll love you, darling!"

They sat down in April's room to talk. Curt said gravely: "I've been thinking I'd like to adopt Kenny as my son, if we can get it fixed up. I'd like him to share equally with Penny in my estate I don't want him to feel left out of things. What do you think about it, dear?"

April's heart turned to lead in her breast. Kenny not to bear the name of Kent Hillyer, Junior! When Curt saw her stricken look he said quickly:

"Oh, darling, I won't ever mention it again if you don't like the idea! I just thought it might be best for all of us to be De Witts."

April answered with difficulty: "I'd never thought of it, Curt. You'll have to let me get used to the idea. But I don't imagine Hill would ever give his consent willingly. Even though he does neglect Kenny dreadfully, his pride would probably rise up in arms at the idea of his name being taken from him."

"You decide," Curt said. "I just wanted you to know I was willing to make him my son legally."

"You're a darling," April smiled at him mistily. "You're so amazingly thoughtful. I'm afraid you're going to spoil me terribly."

"Nothing would make me happier," Curt smiled.

It was a gay dinner party with Curt sitting at the head of the table carving the big turkey Hyacinthe had prepared, and Penny beside Kenny helping him with the things he couldn't manage alone.

"Kenny and Penny, Penny and Kenny," Kenny chanted gleefully, "we're twins Mommy." And the two children went off into gales of happy laughter.

Afterward Gay took Penny and Kenny down the street to the skating rink at the end of the block. They rented roller skates and had a grand time skating to the music of a big band.

It was a very mild day for late November and on the way home they met an old man with a grind organ and a monkey and Penny dropped pennies in the monkey's hat and had more real fun than she had ever had in her sheltered life before.

Curt De Witt smiled affectionately when he saw her rosy cheeks and bright eyes when Gay brought the two children home from their spree. Penny was unusually subdued and quiet, having been brought up almost entirely by a rather severe governess.

"It was wonderful," Penny hugged her father rapturously. "Can't Miss Lorraine come out often and bring Kenny and play with me. Oh, I've never had such a good time. Will you buy me a monkey and a grind organ, Daddy?"

Curt didn't think the monkey and the organ was such a good idea, but he assured her she'd be seeing a lot of Kenny and Gay. When they rode away Kenny cried because Penny hadn't stayed longer.

Thanksgiving day Curt De Witt invited April, Cherry, Gay and Pat to his home for dinner, and April saw the magnificent colonial mansion close up for the first time.

Only Gay knew that she and Curt were secretly engaged, April having thought it best not to even let Cherry know she had decided to marry Curt De Witt until their plans were more definitely set.

April herself couldn't have told why it was she dreaded so much to announce her engagement. But her heart thumped coldly every time she thought of it. She had been so sure she would never marry again. Curt was patient, believing her reticence was due to the fact that she had been divorced such a few short months.

Before dinner Curt took his guests for a tour of the house, and April's eyes opened wider as she went from room to room seeing the fabulous home that was to be hers. It seemed incredible that she, April Lind Hillyer was soon to be mistress of Penny Manor. That was Curt's pet name for it.

Cherry was agog as she clung to Pat's arm, and walked through the wide halls and magnificent rooms. Curt had carried out the colonial effect down to the last detail.

"It's like turning the pages of history back to the Old South before the Civil war," April said breathlessly, as colored servants opened doors and bowed them into rooms filled with priceless colonial furniture, even to canopied beds and old spinning wheels.

Kenny was quite puzzled with the grandeur of the place as he tagged along, clinging to Penny's hand. Once he asked:

"Is it a fairy palace, Penny? Does a beautiful princess live here?"

"No," Penny sighed, smiling and showing her braced teeth. "Only me. And I'm certainly not beautiful."

Gay who walked behind the party with the children put an arm around her.

"You are so beautiful!" she smiled down at her tenderly. "You've got the loveliest brown eyes and black hair I've ever seen in my life. Little girls are never too pretty if they're going to grow up to be very, very beautiful. Didn't you know that?"

Penny searched Gay's face hopefully:

"Really?" she asked. "Are you really telling the truth?" Will I be pretty maybe some day? Mrs. Seeley says I look like a string bean with a funny face on it."

"And who," Gay asked, "might Mrs. Seeley be? She sounds very silly."

"She's my governess," Penny sighed. "I guess she is a very good governess, but sometimes she's sort of a Sour Puss, I think. I must say she isn't very encouraging."

When Gay gave her a tight squeeze Penny said seriously:

"You must have been a very ugly little girl. Because you're the most beautiful lady I have ever seen in my life."

"Why thank you darling," Gay smiled. "That's a lovely compliment."

"I mean it," Penny said stoutly. "You ought to be in the movies."

Kenny's favorite spot was the basement where Curt De Witt had built a tremendous swimming pool, and beyond it a gymnasium with every sort of equipment imaginable. There was even a tennis court, and billiard and ping pong tables. The entire floor was taken up with equipment for exercises or play. Penny had a special rumpus room of her own down there.

Dinner was a parade of pomp with soft candle light and the flames from a great open fireplace lending enchantment to the beauty of the setting. Priceless silver and linens and chinaware, and food fit for the gods. April felt as though she were living through a dream. It was all so incredible.

Pat whispered to Cherry:

"Well, it's kind of nice seeing how the other half lives. Isn't it? I wish I could give you a home like this, Sugar."

Cherry smiled, touching his hand.

"I'd love you if you didn't even have a job, and you know it. It takes more than money to make people happy."

Pat's thin dark face broke into a pleased grin. Could that really be Cherry spouting such old fashioned homilies?

Later Curt told April grinning:

"You can see why I'm so anxious to marry you, darling. Your Southern dialect fits in so nicely with the furniture."

"Oh, I see," April laughed. "I'm just a prop."

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C.—This column is unpleasant to write and almost sure to be misunderstood. Nevertheless, since the war department has announced that it is "amazed" at a ten-year sentence assessed by a court-martial at Fort Bragg on draftee Private Habinyak, for direct disobedience of the orders of an officer, I think it is a duty to write it.

Johnson

Aside from treason, the two most serious of military offenses in our own and all other armies are "sentinel sleeping on post" and "direct disobedience of the orders of a commissioned officer." In shooting war, especially in presence of the enemy, the possible penalty for either is death.

Aside from all sentimental consirations, you can't build dis- on any primary provisions less harsh. No reported war department "amazement" can be very convincing in view of the fact that its educational literature and regulatory mandates stress this point. The truth is that this embarrassment comes at a time when the department is justifiably under fire for low morale and discipline and busily engaged in blaming everybody but itself.

This is not at all to say that I approve the handling of the Habinyak case. In the first place, inexperienced officers are the harshest with enlisted men. In the second, inexperienced courts-martial are the most apt to assess extreme and inconsiderate penalites. No one has yet asserted, that this punishment exceeded the maximum laid down in the book for this offense, except to say that its execution at a civilian penitentiary, rather than a military prison was illegal—and even that is doubtful.

The fault here was in some whipper-snapper down the line, who didn't sit down with this poor, uninformed and reckless kind in his own quarters, make it clear to him what he was up against, explain to him why it had to be and avoid this incident altogether. That is exactly what happened to Sergeant York in similar circumstances—and see what he turned out to be.

I referred in this column the other day to one of my own most poignant memories from my shavetail days. One of the finest kids I ever commanded got the idea, from sweetheart trouble, that he had to get out of the army quickly and that the best way to do it was to refuse to obey an order, get perhaps a year in the guardhouse—and a dishonorable discharge. I did argue with him, but he refused to mount his horse for cavalry drill in front of a whole troop—over and over again. I should have sent him back to barracks and gone more patiently over the case after drill. But a whole squadron was waiting. I took an irretrievable step—sent him to the guard house under general court-martial charges. He also got ten years and I have never ceased to regret it. I always hated court-martial procedure and during many years of service never preferred court-martial charges against more than a few men in unavoidable cases. There were other ways to get better discipline.

But this question is a puzzler, especially at the beginning of the formation of an army. The safety and success of everything depends on unquestioning obedience of deliberate orders, even if they mean death. All soldiers must feel that to the marrow of their bones. Obedience must be second nature. Early in the World war some soldiers in Texas mutinied and killed some civilians. They were hanged by court-martial sentence almost immediately. That time the war department was not merely "amazed," it was in a panic. But almost unanimously the national press applauded the result.

The Habinyak sentence requires prompt review, probably humane commutation, and some discreet shifting of impulsive and inexperienced commanders but no impression should be given that well instructed men can wilfully disobey direct orders and escape with a slap on the wrist. War and military service are grim business.

OHIO JUNIOR FAIR MEMBERS PARADE TODAY

Bricker To Break Ground For New $350,000 Junior Exhibits Building.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio's junior fair members turned out with bands and a parade today to greet Gov. John W. Bricker on an inspection tour of their 32,000 entries at the 91st state exposition.

The governor said he would break ground for the new $350,000 junior fair building and spend most of the day viewing boys' and girls' displays of livestock, home economics and handicraft products.

Special guests were Martin Hock, Cardington farmer and president of the world's first junior fair held at Ashley in 1925, and Malavon Dennis of Ashley, its first secretary and now overseer of 16 central Ohio counties for the National Youth Administration. Approximately 60 county junior fair managers also were expected.

B. P. Sandles, state junior fair manager, said a record 35,742 boys and girls were participating this year. Entries last year numbered about 30,000.

Sandles said the new three-story junior building would be completed in time for the 1942 fair and that two floors would be devoted to dormitories, alleviating overcrowding which forced hundreds of exhibitors to sleep in tents this year.

Heavy rainfall upset the opening harness horse racing program. A muddy half-mile oval delayed the start of events until it was too late to complete them yesterday. Four races, 10 heats in all, were run after 4 p. m.

Ohio livestock won 10 of the 22 top prizes as senior cattle judging got under way yesterday. The grand championship bull award went to Coronet Command, owned by C. B. Teegardin and sons of Ashley. Coronet Command won the senior championship in the polled Shorthorn classification.

An entry by Stewart & Kline, Camden, O., captured the grand champion ribbon in the barrow judging, and Russell Walker, a 4-H club entry from Fredericksburg, won grand championship with his Aberdeen Angus, Satan.

At the opening session of the horse show, Royal Visitor, an 8-year-old chestnut gelding of the Fransabet farm, Fosters, O., was judged best in the three-gait stake.

Inspired by the book, "Say, Is This America?" by Erskine Caldwell and Margaret Bourke-White, the current show case display of American titles at the Mansfield Public library is creating considerable interest among library callers. The span of time covered is represented by a pioneer cabin and a modern skyscraper and the representative authors include Louis Adamic, Russell Lord, and Charles and Mary Beard. Miss Virginia Chew of the library staff arranged the exhibit.

Labor day committeemen have asked Mansfield city officials to allow a fire engine in the Labor day parade march Sept. 1 and now they're wondering. It is well known that city fathers feel it is high time Mansfield had some new fire engines and parade officials are wondering if the chance to do a little educating might not overcome Safety Director C. M. Crafton and make him enter a fire engine that's sure to break down. There's a fire department bond issue coming up for a vote at the November election.

It may have been a long time since John G. Routzon, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, was actually in college but he has just received a diploma from Northwestern university. Routzon has been attending the summer sessions for the past three years and plans to return next year for post-graduate work.

LAYS PLANS TO WIN JOBS FOR OHIO PLANTS

Calls Statewide Meeting of Industrial Plant Representatives.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—The state council of defense prepared today to sponsor a statewide meeting of industrial plant representatives interested in defense sub-contracts to prevent a possible dislocation of Ohio industry and employment.

Courtney Burton, Cleveland mining engineer and industrialist, was named executive director at the first council meeting yesterday. He will serve without salary.

Maj. Ralph D. Henderson of Columbus, vice-chairman of the council, said that because of priorities on raw materials, a serious dislocation of industry and employment is threatened in a number of Ohio cities unless local industrial plants can convert their facilities into defense work.

It was proposed that exhibits of articles for which sub-contract facilities are needed should be displayed at the state-wide meeting and that federal defense agencies be requested to furnish detailed information to manufacturers who might be able to furnish these articles.

The first council session was devoted mostly to discussions of state problems related to the defense program and means of cooperating with federal agencies to expedite defense activities.

Other matters discussed included problems connected with housing, sanitation and access roads in defense plant areas.

Whatever the federal government wants this council to do, we want to do," Governor Bricker, chairman, said. "We will co-operate 100 per cent wherever we can give any assistance in the defense efforts."

Governor Bricker said he expected to call another meeting for next week.

Five members of the council were absent. They were Milo J. Warner, Toledo, national commander of the American Legion; Louis J. Taber, Columbus, national master of the Grange; Arthur J. Gentholts, Youngstown, assistant counsel of the Republic Steel corporation; Edward P. Murphy, Cleveland, Teamsters and Chauffeurs' union official, and State Agriculture Director John T. Brown.

SIX SOLDIERS FLEE HOSPITAL

Prisoners Escape Detention Ward at Military Cantonment.

(By United Press)

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa. — Six soldiers of Pennsylvania's famed iron division, three of them prisoners, escaped into the surrounding Blue mountains today from the hospital at the Indiantown Gap military cantonment.

The escape was disclosed by attaches at the army hospital. They said that the men escaped from Ward 24, a detention ward, and that three of them were prisoners. The ward, in addition to providing medical facilities for men in detention, handles psycopathic cases.

Only two units, the 1325th service outfit and a recently arrived infantry regiment from Fort Dix, N. J., now are stationed at the cantonment. The remainder of the 28th division and the 104th cavalry left the post yesterday for maneuvers at the A. P. hall military reservation in Virginia.

The cantonment is the training headquarters for Pennsylvania's 28th division.

It was the second soldier escape in this vicinity within five days. The other case occurred at Fort Dix, N. J., where one soldier was shot to death after he and six companions sawed their way out of a guardhouse.

DUKE OF KENT INSPECTS U. S. ARMY FORCES, DEFENSE PLANTS

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The Duke of Kent, in the United States as the guest of President Roosevelt, faced another busy day today before leaving for Canada tonight.

This morning the duke was to fly to Baltimore in an army plane to visit the Glenn L. Martin company aircraft plant and to view the bomber assembly line and address the 13,000 employes turning out bombers for the U. S. and Britain.

After visiting the Martin plant he was to review two detachments of motor transport troops and military equipment at Camp Holabird, Md., including demonstration of a "jeep," the army's quarter-ton reconnaissance car.

In the afternoon the duke was to return to Washington for a reception in his honor by the National Press club, followed by dinner at the British embassy before entraining for Canada, where he has been viewing Canada's war effort.

Arriving in Washington with President Roosevelt from Hyde Park, N. Y., early yesterday the royal visitor boarded a navy transport plane and made an inspection tour of the Norfolk naval base and yard, the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock company and then Langley field.

He was tendered a reception at the army's Bolling field on his return by army and navy officers and then was rushed by automobile to the White House where he was guest of honor at a dinner and spent the night.

TWO SENTENCED

One Brother Sent To O. S. R., Another To County Jail.

Two Mansfield brothers were sentenced to the Mansfield reformatory and the county jail yesterday by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, one for assaulting a man and the other for operating a car while under the influence of alcohol.

Sent to the reformatory was Jay Hunter, 24, Eighth avenue, whose probation was revoked by Judge Huston. Hunter received a one-to-15-year sentence. He had been on probation since February, 1939, when he pleaded guilty to a robbery indictment.

Hunter and his brother, Glenn, 27, same address, were arrested Sunday by Sheriff Frank E Robinson after Ed. Stevens, 201 East Fourth street, was beaten up at their home. Stevens was treated at General hospital.

Glenn Hunter, found guilty of driving while intoxicated, was sentenced to the county jail for 30 days and fined $100 by Judge Huston. The fine was suspended and the defendant was placed on probation for two years, beginning at the expiration of his jail term.

Recover Radium Tube, Valued At $5,000, In Sewer

YOUNGSTOWN—(INS)—A pencil like tube of radium worth $5,000 was saved today at the expense of digging up the lawn at South Side hospital.

Thrown down the drain by mistake, the precious metal lodged in a sewer pipe two days ago. Officials ordered a Geiger-Muller counter flown from Detroit, a delicate instrument highly sensitive to radio active substances.

The apparatus indicates the presence of radium by turning the radium's rays into electrical sound impulses.

The 50 milligrams (50 thousandths of a gram) in the lost tube set up an eerie sound from a loud speaker and guided diggers to the exact spot in a sewer pipe four feet under ground.

Braves Win Six In Row, Trim Fremont Lead to 3 Games

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

My friend Mr. P. (that's my public) was ranting again yesterday afternoon after writing Monday's column for me.

"If you've got to start this thing again," says he, "for gosh sakes don't give us so much baseball or so much Braves."

Why he should make a distinction between baseball and the Braves I wouldn't know. Right now the two words are synonymous as the Mansfield club finds itself in a six-game winning streak and battling for the second half championship of the Ohio State league in spite of all the misfortune they've had this season.

Now this is the same Mr. P. who last spring, before the Braves started training, used to howl loud and long: "Quit giving us so much bowling. Tell us something about the Braves."

I can't change the calendar, Mr. P. Sports, like vegetables, fruit and oysters, come in season. Soon you may be kicking against too much football and then too much basketball, but so long as this column gets filled with something, I won't be kicking.

* * *

To fill a column may be bliss. But I shouldn't fill the thing with this.

* * *

Dick Behr of the Fremont News-Messenger modestly nominates an all-star Ohio State league team to include seven Fremont players: Freddy Gerken, Larry Toth, Walt Siera, Buddy Eagan, Hank Miesle, Lloyd Fisher and Jim Stasaitis.

Bobby Ankrum is the only Mansfielder getting a first team choice, and regarding the Braves' shortstop, Behr says:

* * *

"Bob Ankrum is about tops in shortstops because of his flashy fielding, good hitting and the gray matter under his cap. He is labeled for much faster company before he is through."

Take a bow, Robert.

Behr places Bill Salem, Chuck Byers and Bob Kuzava from Mansfield on his second team, along with "Ed Mangan." I don't know whether he means Tiny Tim Mangan or Eddie the Mighty Man Mutryn. The boys can each take a chunk of the honor, I imagine.

* * *

The job of driving the Braves' bus and manicuring the Fairground diamond has proven too much of a strain for our Mose McCullough.

Business Manager Vern Hoffman reports that a doctor told Mose: "You are suffering from a nervous breakdown. Better take a vacation."

So Mose went fishing, and Hoffman now helps with the groundkeeping job, and the ball players take turns driving the hack.

Shelby Clubs In Championship Play

SHELBY—Ohio Seamless Tube Co and the Shelby Cycle Co. will play the second game in the series to determine the Shelby Softball League championship at 6 p m today unless the game is again postponed because of inclement weather.

The game had been scheduled for Monday night but was postponed until tonight because of rain.

The Cycle Co won the first game, 12 to 9. The second game was called in the 10th inning last Friday because of darkness with the score tied, 2 to 2.

CRESTLINE GRIDDERS TO HOLD FIRST SESSION

CRESTLINE — Coach Merle Hutson has called a meeting of all high school boys who expect to go out for football this year for Friday, August 29.

The meeting will be held at the school at 7 p. m., to discuss preliminary matters, and equipment will be given out on Tuesday, Sept. 2, and practice will start that week. Only six or seven lettermen are expected back this year.

The opening game of this year's schedule will be on Thursday, Sept. 18, with Mt. Gilead at the local stadium.

Bob Feller Bows to Boston

Hurls Four Hit Game In 11th Defeat.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Bob Feller pitched one of his best games of the year last night—a four-hitter—but lost to Boston 1 to 0 for his 11th defeat against 21 victories.

Charley (Broadway) Wagner hurled equally good for the Red Sox, also giving up four safe blows. Both moundsmen fanned four and walked four.

* * *

Two of Bob's passes and the failure of Clarence Campbell, his roommate, to hold Frankie Pytlak's drive cost the young fireballer the decision.

* * *

Ted Williams walked to open the seventh, but Pete Fox fanned and Bobby Doerr flied out. However, Lamar Newsome got another free ticket and Pytlak followed with a smash to left field that bounced off Campbell's glove for a double to score Williams with the only run.

The setback dropped the Redskins two games behind Chicago in the race for second place and cut their margin over Boston to a half game.

Jim Bagby and Dick Newsome were today's pitching nominees.

With the echoes of Sunday's ding-dong twin bill still ringing in everybody's ears, the St. Louis Cardinals and Brooklyn Dodgers squared off for another double date today with the pressure more obviously than ever on the Redbirds.

The rain which caused yesterday's scheduled single game to be converted into a doubleheader this afternoon left the Cardinals confronted with the herculean task of beating the powerful Dodgers twice in one day or retreating from Brooklin with their National league pennant chances damaged badly.

Brooklyn has held a game and a half lead over the Cards since last Wednesday.

* * *

If the Dodgers divide today's program they will have come out of their crucial four-game series with an even break and their lead untouched. If they win both games they will be 3½ games ahead.

Therefore the only way the Cardinals could do themselves any real good today would be to win two contests.

Manager Billy Southworth nominated Max Lanier, a young southpaw, for the first encounter, and Morton Cooper, a capable right-hander, for the nightcap

Brooklyn banked on two veterans, Curt Davis and Fred Fitzsimmons.

The program seemed certain to bring another capacity crowd to Ebbets Field unless the weather continued as a drawback. In case rain would keep the tilts from being played today, they would be transferred to St. Louis when the Dodgers make their final western swing after Labor day.

Downpours wrecked yesterday's baseball program completely in the National league and only a part of the junior circuit card survived.

* * *

The Chicago White Sox whipped the New York Yankees, 9-1, on steady nine-hit hurling by Lefty Edgar Smith and a 12-hit offensive.

The St. Louis Browns battled to a 6-3 triumph over the Washington Senators in the first game of a doubleheader and then struggled 10 innings to a 3-3 tie in the nightcap.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Eddie Brietz

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Pinch-Hitting for Eddie Brietz.)

NEW YORK — (The Special News Service)—That rain yesterday cost the Brooks about $25,000. . . . Even if they have a sellout today they can't pack enough folks into Ebbets Field to make up for the ones who wanted to see yesterday's game. . . . Did you notice that the new date for the Louis-Nova fight is just before the world series is due to start. . . . If the Yanks and Brooks are in it, all the fighters will collect is what the ball clubs have to turn back because there's no more room . . . Bob Feller is trying to add a slider to his pitching repertoire, which leads a lot of baseball men to wonder why the guy with the best fast ball in the majors ever bothers with anything else. . . . If Del Baker goes out, Detroit may bring Al Vincent up from Buffalo, where he's been doing a bang-up job of developing young players. . . . Al never played big league ball, but neither did a gent named Joe McCarthy, who's made out all right as a manager.

TRUE TALE.

Fritz Howell, the AP's shootin' iron expert, had quite a shock during the Grand American trapshoot when he woke up early one morning to find Jimmy Robinson, a fellow writer from Minneapolis, crawling around the room grabbing at some imaginary object.... It seems Jimmy was dreaming he was hunting ducks and was chasing a wounded one that got away.

HIGH FLIERS.

Harold Hillman, son of the Dartmouth track coach and one of America's best skiers, has joined the army air corps. So has Reidar Gjolme, jr., who was intercollegiate downhill ski champion. . . . Morley Jennings, who resigned as Baylor coach to take the athletic director's job at Texas Tech, will wind up his active coaching career in the Oil Bowl game at Wichita Falls on Labor day. . . . New England sandlotters want to move the National Semi-Pro Baseball Congress tournament from Wichita, Kan., to the Yankee stadium. . . . First real moan of the football season came from Howard Grubbs, T.C.U. athletic director, who could be heard all the way to New York when he saw the prices he'll have to pay for the boys' meals when they come east to play Fordham.

In Light-Heavy Title Battle

Gus Lesnevich Meets Mauriello In New York.

NEW YORK —(AP)— When Gus Lesnevich and Tami Mauriello battle tonight for the light-heavyweight title, they won't actually have one eye on the heavyweight championship—they'll be too busy with the matter at hand. But they won't be entirely forgetful of the more important class, either.

* * *

Gus, who hails from Cliffside, N. J., and is recognized by the National Boxing association as 175-pound boss, already has taken on several full-fledged heavyweights.

* * *

Tami, a youthful Bronx bomber, has just grown out of the middleweight class and if he continues to pack on pounds, he'll be up with the big fellows in another year or two at any rate, they're due to settle ownership of the lightheavy crown in tonight's 15-round tussle in Madison Square Garden. The New York Athletic commission, which hasn't listed a champion since Billy Conn resigned, has agreed to string along with the N. B. A. in recognizing the winner. Lesnevich earned his claim a few months ago by beating Anton Christoforidis.

Jayhawkers Squad Out of Draft

LAWRENCE, Kan —(INS)— Gwinn Henry, football coach at the University of Kansas, wasn't mad at anybody today. It appeared almost certain that the draft will not affect the Jayhawk backfield during the coming season.

* * *

Participation of the Evans-Ettinger-Miller-Niblo combination seems assured, although there has been some doubt as to whether Uncle Sam had his eye on Ray Niblo, triple-threat gridder.

Niblo's Dallas, Tex., draft board recently notified the husky footballer that he probably will not be called until the end of the year, thus enabling him to play a full season.

Ray Evans, former Wyandotte high school star of Kansas City, Kan., and Don "Red" Ettinger of Independence, Mo., both are under the draft age limit, while Ralph Miller, Chanute passing star is classified for limited military service only in actual war.

Unknown In Amateur Lead

Sets Pace as Pack Hits Final 18 Holes.

OMAHA, Neb.—(AP)—The "anything can happen" golf tournament—the 45th national amateur championship—followed that suspense-packed pattern into the stretch drive for medalist honors at the Field club today.

* * *

Out in front as the field swung into the final 18 holes of qualifying play was a comparative "unknown," Stewart (Skip) Alexander, jr., of Burlington, N. C., the pace-maker on a brilliant five-under-par 67. One stroke back was John P. Burke of Chicago, while far back were such favorites as Bud Ward, Ray Billows and Harry Todd. And right ahead was the day's qualifying windup and a Wednesday-through-Saturday match play program which promised to hold to the wide-open, free-for-all groove.

Bracketed at par 72, were Otto Greiner of Baltimore, the ex-tennis king, Ellsworth Vines, and Ted Bishop, the New England champion.

Ward, the Spokane star who won the championship in 1939 and is the general favorite, came in with a 73 after bogying the 15th and 17th holes. He was bracketed with another ex-champion and the home-town pride, Johnny Goodman, the 1937 amateur kind. A third 73 shooter was Glenn Oatman of Kansas City. Then at 74 came defending champion Dick Chapman, who fell off to an "in" nine of 39, Rodney Bliss of Omaha; Edwin McClure of Shreveport, La., Mario Gonzales of Sao Paulo, Brazil, the only foreign entrant, and Bob Cochran of St. Louis.

Irish Kuzava Tames Sox In Hurling Duel

Mangan and Mutryn Drive Home Deciding Markers In Eighth Frame

MANSFIELD'S BRAVES today are only three games back of the Ohio State league-leading Fremont Green Sox with a chance to cut the margin to one game in a doubleheader tonight at Fremont.

Before a howling crowd of Cub Scouts, Junior Association of Commerce members, and regular patrons of the game, the Braves last night staged a two-run rally after two were out in the eighth to sink the Sox 3 to 2 at the Fairground and chalk up the sixth straight win in their drive for the league's second-half championship.

Lefty Bob Kuzava, who's also known as Irish, was the real hero in this first game of the crucial three-game series, taming the Hose with five scattered hits, walking only three, and fanning eight during the evening's entertainment.

The big youngster, who still has a year of high school ahead of him, should have had a 1 to 0 shutout to his credit. Only one earned run was scored, and that one wasn't by Fremont.

Errors accounted for the two Green Sox markers in the fifth frame. Miesle led off with a single, and after Jim Stasaitis fanned, Toth bounced a double-play ball to the usually reliable Bobby Ankrum. But Bob threw wild into right field and Miesle pulled up at third and Toth at second.

Oddo slapped a short bounder to Dick Morse who fired the ball to the plate where Umpire Dewey Stover ruled Miesle was safe on a close play. Then Eagan bounced another double-play ball to Harry Siegbert, and Harry tossed the ball into centerfield, Toth scoring.

* * *

Mansfield got the only earned run of the game in the sixth when Kuzava strolled, leading off, and made the circuit on Bobby TeStruth's double down the left field line.

* * *

Big Jim Stasaitis, one of the two aces of the Fremont mound staff, was keeping pace with Kuzava in the hurling duel, and when Kuzava fanned and Ankrum bounded out to start the eighth, the outlook was far from brilliant for the home forces, trailing 1-2.

But with two out, Acting Manager Freddy Gerken of the Sox put Mansfield back in the ball game when he dropped Toth's throw to give TeStruth a life.

That was all the encouragement the Braves needed. Tiny Tim Mangan smacked his second double of the game, a long fly to the centerfield fence, and TeStruth scored the tying run. Then Eddie Mutryn smashed a triple off the scoreboard, and Mangan came home with the winning marker.

In spite of the authority in the mighty clouts by Mangan and Mutryn, both runs were uncarned as the error at first by Gerken would have retired the side had Freddy held the ball.

* * *

Jim Coleman and Chuck Byers are scheduled to do the hurling for the Braves at Fremont tonight.

Tires-Supplies Duel To 14-14 Deadlock.

The second-half Commercial league duel between the Athletic Supplies and Mansfield Tires softball teams struck a snag last night as the two teams battled to a 14-14 draw forcing a replay of the tilt at John's park, Wednesday at 6 p. m.

The Tires opened the game with a nine run barrage in the first, added two markers in both the second and third, and concluded their scoring with a lone tally in the fourth.

The Supplies started slowly, counting twice in the opening frame. They were held scoreless in the second and third, added a marker in the fourth and then crashed through with a ten run rally in the fifth and tied the score, 14-14 in the last of the sixth.

Phitzenmayer lead the Supplies attack with three out of four, two of his hits coming via the round trip route. Lewis also added a homer for the Supplies.

McMullen did the heavy work for the Tires duplicating Phitzenmayer's home run count.

The winner of the second half duel will meet Tappan's club, first half title-holders, for the league crown.

AERIAL PHOTOS TO AID FOREST FIRE FIGHTERS

Portable Darkroom Offers Speed In Forming Strategy.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif.—(U.P.)—Aerial reconnaissance and photography may become increasingly important as an aid to fighting forest fires if a portable tent darkroom under experimentation here proves its worth.

The portable darkroom makes it possible for fire fighters in the field to determine the exact location and severity of mountain blazes in a few minutes time, according to the two men who originated it. They are Frank Scovel, fire prevention engineer for the county-state fire department, and Harold Bowhay, county fire warden.

A fire may be photographed from an airplane, the undeveloped negatives dropped by parachute to ground crews. The films are developed in the small tent darkroom right on the line of battle.

Scovel estimated that with the portable equipment the chief of a fire crew can have a completed print of a forest fire within seven minutes after the airplane cameraman snaps the shutter. The information that can be gleaned from such a photograph is extremely valuable in planning suppression activities and selecting the point of attack, according to Bowhay.

The films are contained in a sealed tube during their downward flight. Once on the ground, the tube is opened by the crew boss in the darkroom and the film removed and developed. Prints are made with an electric light, the power being supplied by a portable generator.

From the photographs, the sound crews obtain information as to the terrain, the character and trend of the fire and its exact location in mountainous areas.

Immediately after a fire is reported, a forest service plane takes off to scout the terrain. Meanwhile, fire fighting crews move up by road and establish a base near the blaze. There the films are received and developed.

Casket Makers Are Affected By Defense Program

PEORIA, Ill.—(INS)—Manufacturers of metals for burial vaults, caskets, and hardware fittings have been told there will be no more copper for their use, that zinc is becoming scarce, and that they may expect at almost anytime to have no more zinc or sheet steel for use in burial equipment, according to manufacturer's representatives at the 61st annual Illinois Funeral Director's Association convention in Peoria.

Only 20 per cent of the nation's caskets are made of metal, it was announced. Others are cloth covered wood, or of highly polished fine woods, or of a plastic material.

Burial vaults may soon be made from plastics instead of metal or concrete to allow for defense orders, one company already having begun the manufacture of bodies for army trucks, and another army cots.

DWARF APPLE POPULAR

GENEVA, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The dwarf apple tree is becoming increasingly popular with amateur gardeners and small home owners. The miniature fruit-bearing tree, which grows to a height of between 7 and 8 feet, has become a practical accomplishment at the New York State Experiment Station here.

FLOWER PICKING ILLEGAL

SALEM, Ore.—(U.P.)—This state has plant laws. As a consequence, the state department has notified all citizens that if they have an uncontrollable desire to have a wild flower, to get it at a nursery instead of picking it wild. Otherwise, they will be breaking the law.

Cancer of the tonsils, considered incurable 20 years ago, now can be cured once in five cases.

FDR, Jr., And Churchill In Iceland

THEATERS

Newcomers Introduced

Mickey Rooney's picture, "Life Begins For Andy Hardy," showing at the Ohio introduces two newcomers, Patricia Dane and Ray McDonald, who help show the small town graduate what life is like in the big city. Miss Dane plays a siren who gets Andy in her clutches and McDonald appears as a down-and-out hoofer befriended by Andy. Showing Andy's adventure in New York, where he expects to work for a month just to see what it's like, the production shows the ups and downs of the Carvel youth, who, up to now, has had things pretty much his own way. Judy Garland, Fay Holden and Lewis Stone are cast.

Mountain Drama

Harry Carey plays the role of a man who seeks peace and justice in the Ozarks only to find that his own son has sworn an oath to kill him in "The Shepherd of the Hills," Harold Bell Wright's stirring drama, filmed in Technicolor, showing at the Madison. How he restores kindliness among the feuding mountaineers is told in a series of powerful scenes featuring Betty Field, John Wayne, James Barton and Beulah Bondi. Wayne plays the youth pledged to avenge his mother's death and Betty Field, the girl, who withholds her love until Wayne lays down his gun.

Farce Comedy

How the sympathies of a millionaire department store owner are suddenly swung to the side of his workers furnishes hilarious comedy in "The Devil and Miss Jones," showing at the Park. Starring Jean Arthur, as the salesgirl who takes the store owner under her wing after mistaking him for a downtrodden shoe clerk, the picture has Charles Coburn in the role of the millionaire and Robert Cummings as the salesgirl's sweetheart. Spring Byington is cast. "Sunset In Wyoming," Gene Autry's picture, is the second attraction.

Whacky Theme

William Powell and Myrna Loy are co-starred in "Love Crazy," the gay comedy of a man who met up with a former sweetheart and then had to act insane to prevent his wife from obtaining a divorce. Gail Patrick plays the charmer who couldn't resist creating havoc and Jack Carson and Sidney Blackmer are in the cast. "The Wagons Roll," the second picture, stars Humphrey Bogart.

HAD TO PROVE SHE WASN'T MAN

GREYBULL, Wyo. —(AP)— Mrs. Roy Hutchinson of Kent, Wash., had to make a trip to Wyoming to prove she was unqualified for army service.

When her birth certificate was made out on May 1, 1912, her name was erroneously listed as "John M. Delk, male" and it was filed at Stringtown, Wyo., where she was born.

The Wyoming selective service board came in possession of the birth certificate and they ordered "John M. Delk" to appear and explain why he hadn't registered for the draft.

MARKET SHOWS INDICATION OF UPWARD MOVES

Bullish Forces Heartened By Way Stocks Maintain Their Equilibrium.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—The stock market today acted as though it would crawl into higher territory if given half a chance. After a hesitant start gains of fractions were tacked on a number of leaders.

Bullish forces, while deriving scant inspiration from the war news, seemed heartened by the fact the market has maintained its equilibrium in the face of cloudy developments at home and abroad.

Boardrooms found a grain of comfort in the federal reserve compilation disclosing member banks in 101 cities in the week ended last Wednesday boosted commercial, industrial and agricultural loans to a new 10-year peak.

Those holding merchandizing company shares noted reports of continued heavy retail spending throughout the country in anticipation of the tighter installment credit terms which go into effect Sept. 1.
